SUBJECT : Structure and Functions of Section II, General
Staff, Following Reorganization

25X1

1. Reorganization

In March 1947 Section II (Intelligence), General Staff, was reorganized. Counter-espionage functions were transferred to the newly-created Army Information Service (SIA), set up under the Ministry of War. Section II at present conducts counter-espionage operations only within the General Staff and institutions under its direction, such as the Higher Military Academy, Military Museum, Military Geographical Institute, and editorial offices of the Military Review of Rumania. Section II retains its responsibility for collection of positive intelligence on foreign nations, training of troops in combat intelligence techniques, and its liaison with foreign military attaches stationed in Rumania. Section II is reported to have been shorn of its counter-espionage functions because its career officer personnel was distrusted by the local Soviet authorities and the Groza Government. Trusted officers were transferred from Section II to SIA when the latter agency was established.
